NEW RELEASES ON NEXIS: Spotlight | UK | Germany | US | Asia |

Spotlight on.... FT Business

FT Business market leading global B2B publications and award winning journalists have helped to make them the world's leading business information provider.

Their impressive portfolio includes some of the world's most established magazine brands, such as The Banker, fDi Magazine, Financial Adviser and Money Management.

LexisNexis has recently added the title This is Africa to its collection of licensed FT Business content. This quarterly publication seeks to examine African business and politics in a global context and to make sense of the relationships that Africa is building with the rest of the world. This publication will equip senior decision makers with the knowledge to understand the evolution of African economies; to find partners and investments that match their criteria for return or for development and to position their brands to take advantage of the rise of the African consumer.

All the magazines from the FT Business stable are available on Nexis and do not carry any embargoes or restrictions. The Financial Times and LexisNexis have enjoyed a fruitful commercial partnership for many years and the addition of new titles to the feed is further evidence of this partnership at work.

The full list of FT Business content now online via LexisNexis is:

- Publications include: Hackney Gazette, Hampstead and Highgate Express (Ham and High), Islington Gazette, Newham Recorder, East London Advertiser.
- These titles are part of Archant's paid-for weekly newspaper portfolio that offers quality reports at the very heart of the busy communities in north and central London. The five London titles also offer local news, sport and entertainment from across north London. These newspapers will help further our dominance in regional coverage and should appeal to a wide user group from local government, law firms and media companies.

BMI Company Analysis Reports

Company profiles are systematically researched each year at source, by a combination of web, email and telephone validation. In addition, company updates and new company profiles and executive appointments are added to the online database daily through continuous desk research. These additions will complement the existing company coverage on Nexis and continue our relationship with BMI.
